

College Life And Its Lasting Impact On Your Life

If you ask the most successful people in life which is the best time of their life, most of them are likely to go mention their college life. Yes, this is very true, for most people their college life has lasting impact on their life. To put it succinctly, your college or university experience shapes your life. If you want to have an enjoyable campus life, you will need to select the best college in Yemen.

Besides many other factors, you will be happy with your college life when you feel that you are in the right place and when you realize that you are receiving quality education. Most of the degree programs that we come across take a theoretical approach or at least they have a heavy inclination towards theoretical approach. This however may not be the best approach to acquiring knowledge. The best approach to acquiring knowledge then will be the practical approach. With the practical approach you learn to apply the principles and the concepts that you learn which makes the learning process more meaningful.

One of the universities that is specifically noted for its practical teaching pedagogy is the Al-Nasser University, Yemen. This university is popularly referred as the best practical university in Yemen. This university uses various platforms to impart knowledge through practical application such as classes, labs, workshops and internships.

Another factor that will make you feel good about your college life is when you know that your time is being spent fruitfully and that you are preparing yourself for an interesting career path. Here again Al-Nasser university deserves a special mention. You will be able to enroll for many impressive dual degree programs. Al-Nasser University is in collaboration with one of the most popular IT institutions namely the Aptech Institute. Aptech is an Indian IT institute, which has its learning center in Yemen, which is located within the Al-Nasser University campus. Students of Bachelor of Information Technology degree program can enroll for a dual degree program on Advanced Diploma in Software Engineering. The curriculum for this dual degree programs have been developed by scholars from Aptech India and Al-Nasser University. This dual degree program is a fully accredited program by top universities in the UK, US, Australia and India. After this dual degree program you can pursue your masters degree or other equivalent higher education without any need for further educational requirements. When you enroll in such programs you will certainly have a great sense of satisfaction and accomplishment, which you can carry forward to the rest of your life.

Besides these, good extracurricular activities also play a very important role in making your college studies memorable and enjoyable. You will have to balance between fun and work during your college studies so that you enjoy your campus life all through and not get bored or burnt out half way. Al-Nasser University is a perfect platform where you find best extracurricular opportunities along with good academic curriculum.
