

The Facilities That You Should Look For While Joining Your Undergraduate Degree Program

By Nora Al Baghdadi

There are many colleges in Yemen where you can enroll yourself for your bachelors degree programs. However, not all colleges that you come across have the same facilities. Some of them are better equipped than the others. You will have to therefore make sure that the educational institution that you select for your medical studies or for your IT & Computer Science studies are well equipped.

These are some of the important facilities that every modern college should have. Does your university or college have a good library? You may not be able to buy all the books that you need for your course and assignments. You should therefore have a very good library so that you are not depending just on the internet resources for all your coursework and assignments.

Does your Engineering & Computer Sciences College have a good computer lab? Are they equipped with the latest computers or do they have old model computers that can in no way match with the capabilities of modern computers? It is not enough to have the latest computers but does your computer lab provide good workspace for the students to use the lab conveniently? Most of the universities today provide free Wi-Fi facility to the students. Does your college match these standards? Today it is very important to have access to the internet. The internet has become one of the important sources of knowledge today.

If you are enrolling for any medical studies as part of your bachelors degree programs, you will have to double check whether your university has good laboratory facilities. Check whether they are equipped with the latest equipment. Substandard labs will affect the quality of the education offered directly. All the practical knowledge will be gained through the labs, so it is very important that you make sure that your university provides the students with excellent lab facilities.

Does your college or university have good admin team to provide the students with the required support and guidance? Fully functional administration team is very important for the smooth running of the college.

How well qualified are the lecturers and the teaching staff at your college. Good facilities does not mean good building and good equipment, it also means having good teaching faculties. Do the faculties have access to the best resources to impart the knowledge?

In case you are looking for options for education for physically disabled, does your college provide the students with all the required facilities. Is the campus friendly for the physically challenged?

When you are selecting your college for undergraduate degree programs such as Bachelor of Pharmacology, Bachelor of Nursing, Bachelor of Medical Laboratory or any other course, that you prefer to join, it is not enough that you just check the college brochure. You will need to double check whether the college really offers everything that it promises. At Al-Nasser, the best practical university in Yemen you will find top-notch facilities that are required to deliver the best education possible.
